

IMPERATIVES

speak, eat, slow, go, recycle, take, stand, drink, feed.

IMPERATIVES

The imperative is used to give commands, orders and to make suggestions.

EXAMPLES:

- OPEN the door, please.
- LET'S PARK here.
- TURN ON the airconditioned.

HOW TO USE THEM

- The imperatives is the same as a verb. We use the verb without you.

Help your parents at home.

Play quietly!

- Use please to be more polite.

Please put the plates on the table.

Don't make so much noise, please.

NEGATIVES

We use DON'T for the negative form.

- Don't BE LATE for classes.
- Don't EAT in class.

Don't arrive late for class.
Don't run in the hallways.
Don't eat in the classroom.
Don't listen to music in the classrooms or the hallways.
Don't fight.

IMPERATIVOS CON LET, LET'S

➤ LET'S

Cuando en la oración se quiere incluir a uno mismo, es decir, nosotros en la expresión, por ejemplo, ¡Vámonos! Se utilizará let's go!

Let's es la contracción del verbo Let + el "object pronoun" "us"

➤ LET

El verbo "let" significa permitir o dejar que alguien haga algo. Se utiliza para expresar permiso de manera informal y cotidiana. A diferencia de otros verbos, no requiere la preposición "to" antes del verbo que sigue.

Ejemplo:

Let the children play outside. → Deja que los niños jueguen afuera.

Negaciones

- Let's not + verbo: para sugerir no hacer algo.

Let's not fight over this. → No peleemos por esto.

- Don't let + objeto + verbo: para impedir que alguien haga algo.

Don't let him drive if he drinks. → No le dejes conducir si bebe.

Diferencias con "allow" y "permit"

- Let: informal, cotidiano, con personas cercanas.
- Allow: más formal, reglas o permisos oficiales.
- Parents allow their kids to stay up late. → Los padres permiten que sus hijos se queden despiertos hasta tarde.
- Permit: muy formal, legal o institucional.
- Smoking is not permitted in this area. → No se permite fumar en esta área.

Let

Let me go.

Let me see.

Let me go there.

Let me do the work.

Let me play football.

Let me write the letter.

Let me read the book.

Let me have some food.

Let's

Let's go home.

Let's go for a walk.

Let's go to the party.

Let's go to the garden.

Let's help the poor man.

Let's arrange a meeting.

Let's meet the chairman.

Let's go to the restaurant.

Let - to allow or take permission someone to do something.

Let's - When we work together or do something with someone.

Office ergonomics: Your how-to guide

Identifica verbos imperativos en este párrafo

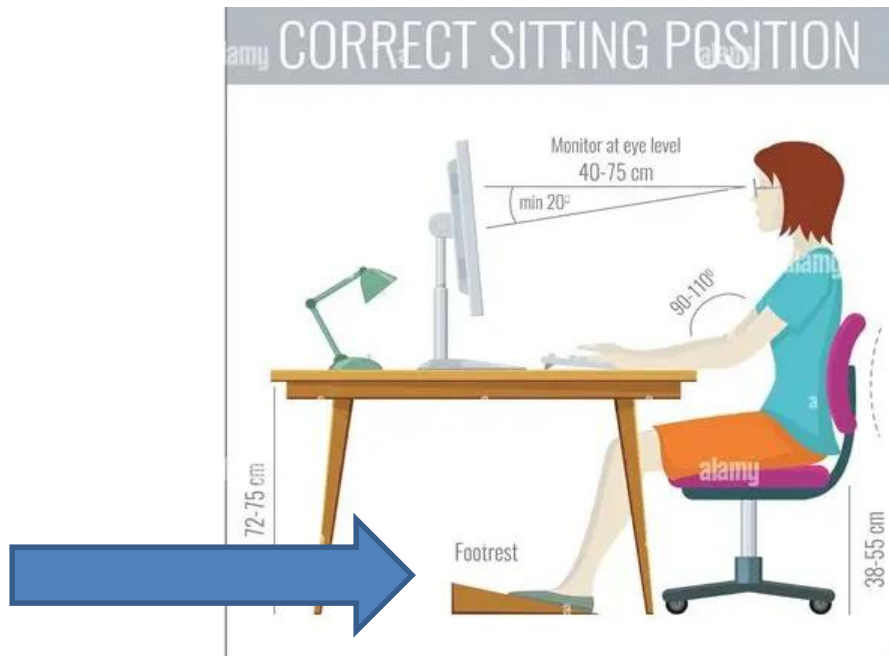

Chair

Choose a chair that supports your spine.

Adjust the height of the chair so that your feet rest flat on the floor.

Use a footrest so your thighs are parallel to the floor.

If the chair has armrests, position them so your arms sit gently on the armrests with your elbows close to your body and your shoulders relaxed.

Desk

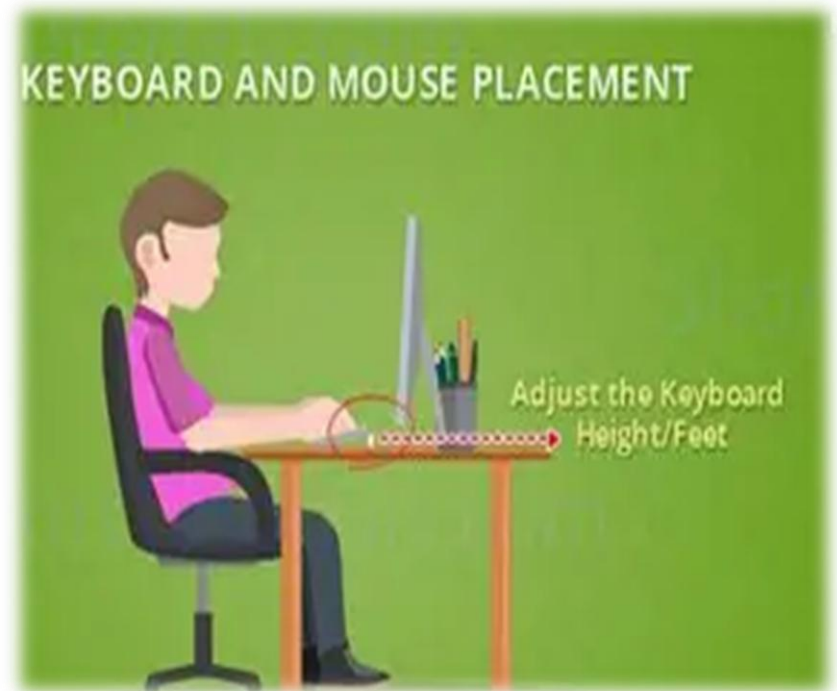

Under the desk, make sure there's enough room for your legs and feet. Don't store items under your desk, as that can shrink the amount of available space and make it hard to sit correctly. If the desk is too low and the desk height can't be changed, put sturdy boards or blocks under the desk legs to raise it. If the desk is too high and can't be changed, raise your chair. Use a footrest to support your feet if necessary. If you don't have a footrest, try using a small stool or a stack of sturdy books.

Keyboard and mouse

Put your computer keyboard in front of you so your wrists and forearms are in line and your shoulders are relaxed. If you use a mouse or another type of pointer connected to a computer, place it within easy reach, on the same surface as your keyboard. While you are typing, using a computer touchpad, or using a mouse or pointer, keep your wrists straight, your upper arms close to your body, and your hands at or slightly below the level of your elbows. If possible, set the sensitivity of the mouse or pointer so you can use a light touch on it.

Monitor

Place the computer monitor straight in front of you, directly behind your keyboard, about an arm's length away from your face. The monitor should be no closer to you than 20 inches (about 50 centimeters) and no further away than 40 inches (about 100 centimeters). The top of the screen should be at or slightly below eye level. If you wear bifocals, lower the monitor an additional 1 to 2 inches (about 2 to 5 centimeters) for more comfortable viewing.

Telephone

If you spend a lot of time on the phone, or if you often type or write while you're using the phone, put the phone on speaker or use a headset. Don't cradle the phone between your head and neck.

Remember, no matter how well your workspace is set up for proper ergonomics, sitting in the same position for hours at a time isn't good for your body. Get up and walk around as often as you can throughout the workday. If possible, do some work standing up. While you're seated, stretch your hands, fingers and arms from time to time. Shifting your position, standing up and moving will ease strain on your body and help you stay healthier.

Telephone Basics

- Avoid cradling the hand set between your shoulder and head
- Hold the hand set with your non dominate hand.
- Use a headset or speaker phone when appropriate

Arm-rest and Shoulders

If the chair has an armrest, use it to reduce the pressure on the shoulders. On chairs without armrest, all pressure is placed on shoulders. If you cannot buy a chair with an armrest, you can place your elbows on your legs after crossing them. But this workaround of crossing legs and placing elbows on the legs can also be dangerous in the long run. It is okay for short periods. Remember that if you keep the legs crossed (like resting one foot on the knee of another leg), blood flow to the legs will be affected.

To avoid problems with legs and to care for your shoulders, use a chair with arm rests. If the armrests are adjustable, it is even better because one size does not fit all. If you don't have a chair with armrest, try to buy one as soon as possible. You won't want to live with shoulder pain all your life.
